Children's Books & Classroom Helps

Molly Weston, Editor

Pat Wesley, Director

FPG Child Development Institute
The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill

This booklist is brought to you by Partnerships for Inclusion. We hope you will use our suggestions in your quest to bring resources reflecting the rich diversity of our world into your classrooms. All books have been selected carefully by PFI's Molly Weston, editor of All Together Now!, who reviewed each one to determine its appropriateness for children under the age of 8 years. The result—a delightful array of varied topics, writing styles, and illustrations that are sure to please adults and children alike.

About Partnerships for Inclusion

PFI is a statewide technical assistance project that promotes the inclusion of young children with disabilities, birth through five years, and their families in all aspects of community life. With offices in the western, central and eastern regions of North Carolina, project staff work closely with a variety of individuals and groups. Typically these include public schools, child care and preschool programs, early intervention agencies, resource and referral agencies, community colleges, interagency councils, and smart Start partnerships. Funded by the Public Schools of North Carolina and the Department of Health and Human Services, PFI offers an array of services. These include consultation to improve early childhood program quality and to promote children's smooth transitions among programs, training, assistance with strategic planning and program evaluation, resource linking, and a quarterly magazine that highlights issues and programs in early childhood inclusion. The project also assists state agencies to develop policy and program initiatives that facilitate full community integration of children with disabilities and their families.
